Mark Your Calendar!

The Animal Science Department at UC Davis is hosting a field day for sheep producers large and small. Several important topics will be covered including nutrition, grazing management, sheep and crop integration, animal health assessments, marketing and tail docking. There will also be tours available for youth and families who want to know more about the UC Davis campus and facilities.

Barbecue lamb and other lip-smackin' delights will be served for lunch, included with registration.

Come with a big appetite for good food and good information.
